British Military Intelligence tortured German POWs and defendants in order to force confessions

It has been admitted and revealed (in the memoirs of the top British official, Colonel Alexander Scotland, who ran the program) that thousands of Germans were tortured by British Military Intelligence, under the direction of the Prisoner of War Interrogation Section (PWIS). This torture of German POWs occurred during the war to obtain military intelligence, and after the war was over, in order to obtain confessions for convictions of "war crimes".

German POWs reported that the torture techniques included deprivation of sleep, starvation, systematic beatings, ripping hair from the scalp, menacing with red-hot

At Nuremberg, Rudolf Höss "confessed" to killing "2.5 million" jews at Auschwitz

The prosecutors at Nuremberg accused and convicted the Germans of murdering some "4 million" people at Auschwitz — based largely upon the supposed "confessions" (obtained via torture) of German officers, such as the signed "confession" by Rudolf Höss (the commandant at Auschwitz) to having supervised the murder of "2.5 million" jews.

Then, around 1990 the Polish Government reduced the claim of the number killed at Auschwitz from 4 million to around 1 million.

Therefore, this "confession" by Höss was false.

Almost all defendants at Dachau trials had their testicles crushed

Following reports that defendants were tortured at the "Malmedy massacre" trial, the U.S. Army formed the "Simpson Commission" to investigate the alleged misconduct. Judge Edward L. Van Roden was part of this commission.

According to Van Roden's book American Atrocities in Germany, out of 139 cases of treatment of alleged German "war criminals" that were investigated by the commission (who were put on trial by the American Military Tribunal in Dachau after World War II), 137 were tortured by having their testicles crushed. Other methods used by the American interrogators included brutal beatings, placing a hood over the prisoner and punching them in the face with brass knuckles, breaking jaws, knocking out teeth, starvation rations, and solitary confinement. The prisoners were then presented with prepared statements to sign, "confessing" to various crimes.

Jewish prosecutors and interrogators control the U.S. Military tribunal of German "war criminals"

Lt. William Perl (pictured left) was an Austrian Jew who had emigrated to America in 1940. He was the chief interrogator of Germans accused of the "Malmedy massacre", and supervised the torture of the defendants.

Perl was an active Zionist, and assisted by other Jews on the interrogation staff, including Josef Kirschbaum, Harry Thon and Morris Ellowitz. [source]
